This is a very graiffying showing, the receipts exceeding the salary of the Chief and all his force by $33,30. A force which is not only self sustaining, but actually a source of revenue, is something the city can "point at with pride." Yet whenever a proposition is made to increase the force some "watch-dug of the Treasury" rises and inquires where the money is to come from to pay the officers.

urther and Fuller Particulars Th Reilly's large wholesale grocery store on Main street, had been consumed by fire yes-terday morning until they received the morning papers which were about two hours late, having been held in order to obtain an account of the conflagration. By 8 o'clock itizens commenced to flock to the scene in work of clearing had already been commenced. All day long the place was visited by the curious.

Yesterday morning, when the blaze was at its height, the cause was generally ascribed to incendiarism, but later on that idea was scouted and that of combustion accepted, which appears to be the true cause. At 3. a. s. Patroiman Murdock passed the place and everything inside was dark and quiet. Five minutes later "Pacer," an INTRLICENCER, newsboy on his way to this office, passed and saw a small fire. He yelled, and Patrofiman Wilcox, who was at the Opera House corner, Patroiman Murdoch, who was at the corner of Twelfth and Main, and the writer, who was just leaving the office, ran to the place where the cry came from, all blowing their police whistles vigorously which were heard by Mr. Bob Frew, who pulled box 25 sending in two alarms and bringing out the entire department. When the writer arrived at Reilly's, the fire was about ten feet from the door, heside a stove, and appeared to be soap boxes and rubbish burning. The heavy front doors were securely locked and could hardly be shaken. In the rear the doors and shutters are of iron and they were securely closed, It was learned that on Tweshay considerable Louisville line. in the rear the doors and shutters are of iron und they were securely closed. came roaring up the elevator, came in contact with a number of packing boxes as dry as tinder.

The Atlantic took a plug just above the fire, the Vigilant one at the corner of Main and Twelfth, the United at the Stamm House, the Hope opposite the blaze, and the Seventh and Eighth ward companies in the rear, where they mounted to the roof and did excellent work. The water supply was never better, and the pressure was tremendous, a common plug stream carrying to the fourth story windows. As fast as the hose could be unrecled seven streams were put on. The men worked admirably, there scenning to be a regular system about them that was highly commendable. Major Bodley and Isalah Warren, E-q., worked hard to save the property, and the discharged men, Healy and Clator, worked as though they they were again "regulars." They, as well as the others, worked like Trojans, and stuck gallantly to their posts. Early in the fight the suction hose of the Vigilant burst badly, and rendered that engine useless. The company got two plug streams on in its place. It was not until fully an hour after being discovered that the men were able to check the fire in the least. Then the struggle for the control commenced, and gradually it was smothered in all except the top iloor. The ladders were not long enough to reach and Eccles was in a quandary, when Clainer's patent ladder, standing in East Wheeling, was thought of, and a pair of horses soon came galloping up with it. The ladder with the Hope hose was clevated, and at 6,30 colock no blaze was visible in the Heilly block. About this time the roof of the upper part caved in, carrying with it a telephone tractle and about seventy-live wires. The falling of the roof showed the whiskies and wines, which were in the rear part of the fourth floor, to do conversatively uninjured.

S. Dempinin, Soft & Co. as a large wholesale dry goods house, was safe, and that the only damage would be been was very thick inside. Soon after the fall of the roof, however, coals of fire were noticed dropping down the Deleplain elevator, and investigation showed that the roof was on fire. It was at in roof like that of Reilly's and of first quality, but the fire had worked its way underneath. Holes were cut in the roof, nozzles inserted and the place flooded almost entirely ruining the large and expensive stock, but extinguishing the fire. On the second floor, notions, it was simply awful and on the first there was not a dry piece of eloth left. The amount of water thrown in both buildings was immense. One thing noticeable about this fire was the small number of people that turned out; at no time was there over 250 people about.

In Reilly's store nearly everything is ruined, but still there will be some salvage;

The fire was no doubt of incendidary origin, and some persons living in the vicinity declared they saw a man.run out of the alley shortly before the fire was discovered. The building was completely destroyed, the department being a little slow in getting out. The Eighth ward hose, from the south end of the city, was the first to get a stream on, and the Hope, from Tenth street, was second. terday's Fire. Elitors intelligeneer: Misfortunes should carry their lessons, and it is the part of wisdom to utilize and profit by them. Two or three points are suggested by the contraction of property on Main street

Two or three points are suggested by the large destruction of property on Main street worth thinking about. The principal one is the prime necessity of a reliable separating fire wall. If such a wall between the Reilly and Delaplain property had been continued through the roof 1 foot or 18 inches, the fire would not have effected an entrance to the Delaplain stores, and several thousand dollars would have been saved by the outlay of certainty not over one hundred lodges.

Ohio City Lodge No. 54, K. P., celebrated its minth anniversary Tuesday evening, at the hall on Hanover street. A large audience was present, and addresses were delivered by R. M. Thatcher, of Ohio City Lodge, J. N. Taylor, of Belmont Lodge, Bridgeport, and Capt. B. R. Dovener, of Black Prince Lodge, Wheeling. The ceremonies were very interesting. Refreshments were served in profusion, and a pleasant evening passed. The assemblage broke up about 11 oclock, with everybody pleased with the entertainment. Delaplain stores, and several thousand dollars would have been saved by the outlay of certainly not over one hundred dollars.

Another costly experiment which builders repeat again and again is allowing or aranging rooling joists to abut. This should never be done, nor should they have more than two to three inches of heel in the wall.

It should be a source of congratulation to our citizens, and especially to the Councilmen who so presistently advocated the measure, that the new thirty-inch main is to be a joy forever. Although there were seven heavy streams thrown for nearly three hours, there was no sensible decrease of pressure on the higher streets, and if a fire had occurred on Thirteenth or Fourteenth streets the suphyl of water would have been ample. The loss of sixteen inches at the reservoir during the progress of the fire was not felt.
